b. Sick Leave and Family Medial Leave - Inman Grimsley

The Family Medical Leave Act (FML) of 1993 covers employees of a company employing 50 or more employees, and essentially guarantees in certain conditions a period of 12 weeks of unpaid leave. To qualify, an employee must have onthe fqualifying conditions set forth (see attached) and must have worked a total of 1250 hours in the preceding 12 month period.

Once the condition is certified and the employeethiserwise qualified, the leave is essentially guaranteed. The employer has the obligation tosedhie employee that certain absences may be covered by the FMLA.

FMLA may or may not be for a condition coverted the University sick leave policies, e.g. adoption of a child. In such cases, an emptomay elect payment from accrued annual leave. In cases where the Family Medical Leave is also content sick leave policy, e.g. serious health condition of the employee, an employee may electroeive sick leave and/or annual leave for the period of the absence. The employee might also elect not to have leave paid during the period of absence. Such payments are totally optional.
